

Why has my medication changed?

Your medication might look different to your usual medication.

The packet might be a different colour or the name might have changed.

If it has, don't worry - it does the same thing as your last medication.

There's a shortage of your usual medicine so we've found a different medicine that does the same thing to replace it.

If you're feeling worried about it you can talk to the pharmacist who can help to explain it to you.
